Sui Northern Gas Pipelines Limited (SNGPL) in Pakistan has undertaken commendable efforts to address the persistent natural gas crisis in the country, particularly during the challenging winter months. One of their key initiatives is the Winter Load Management Program, a strategic approach aimed at optimizing the distribution of available gas resources to meet the heightened demand during colder seasons. This program involves meticulous planning and execution to ensure an equitable supply of gas to consumers. However, what truly sets Sui Northern apart is its emphasis on teamwork to facilitate a prompt resolution of consumer complaints. The company has fostered a collaborative environment, encouraging effective communication and coordination among different departments. This concerted effort ensures that consumer grievances are addressed in a timely manner, enhancing customer satisfaction and reinforcing the effectiveness of SNGPL's overall strategy to alleviate the natural gas crisis in Pakistan.

It is with deep sorrow and profound sadness that we acknowledge the tragic loss of Sui Northern's Executive Admin Officer (Karak Camp) Fahad Ashfaq in the troubled region of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa in a terrorist attack while he was dutifully performing his responsibilities. Our hearts go out to the grieving family during this incredibly difficult time, and we offer our sincerest condolences for their irreparable loss. The bravery and commitment exhibited by the deceased in the face of adversity are a testament to his unwavering dedication to his duties. As a Company, we stand in solidarity with the family, expressing our utmost sympathy and assuring them of our full support in whatever capacity they may require. As a token of acknowledgement, this issue of 'The Pride' has been dedicated to him.

FROM AWARENESS TO ACTION: PARADIGM SHIFT IN EMERGENCY RESPONSE PLANNING

Shahbaz Ali Jaffar

Psychological evidence supports the notion that staying calm and composed during emergencies is the most effective response, crucial in saving lives during critical initial minutes.

As part of ongoing efforts by SNGPL's HSE Department, fire fighting and evacuation drills are carried out on periodic basis across the Company to aware and prepare our employees, how to react and respond in an emergency situation to save lives and valuable Company assets.

However, the common attitude of 'it can't happen here' persists among many organizations, neglecting the importance of emergency preparedness. Alongside addressing fire, explosions, and natural disasters, an Emergency Response Plan (ERP) is essential in coordinating various services for swift responses, particularly in terrorism-related situations.

Public and institutional preparedness and response to potential emergencies owing to terrorism has been acknowledged not just locally but is being endorsed at a global level. For the purpose, coordination was made with Civil Defense Department, Counter Terrorism Department and Elite Forces, Bomb Disposal Squad, Punjab Forensics, Rescue I 122, local police, respective security agencies and fire fighting and evacuation drills were conducted at Multan Transmission and Compression.

In addition to the fire emergency and evacuation, the mock drills comprise of emulation of bomb threats along with terrorists' attacks. While the respective anti terrorism and bomb squad units along with rest of the participating agencies exhibit swift response and demonstration in these drills; the objective of the drills is to create awareness amongst SNGPL employees about the following:

- Recommended actions and things to avoid during unfortunate incidents of law and order situation / terrorism.
- 2. Execution of protocols demonstrated by security agencies engaged in such emergency situations.
- 3. Instil confidence in employees regarding the readiness of relevant authorities and agencies.
- Assess and trail run SNGPL Multan
 Transmission's and Compression's emergency protocols and communication system, aiming for an effective response in case of a potential terrorism incident (God forbid).

To conclude, in today's corporate landscape, acknowledging threats to lives and assets is indispensable. Safety and security awareness programs and regular drills serve as pillars in nurturing proactive behaviours among employees. It's imperative that all Company employees, irrespective of their hierarchical position, comprehend and assume their responsibility in executing emergency response plans effectively. Through ongoing training and drills, tangible benefits can thus be realized by employees and stakeholders alike, fostering heightened productivity and profitability within the corporate framework.
